

Software Firewall Engineer (m/w/d)

Fest - Vollzeit    Jobregion: Bern    Stellenprozente: 100%

Beschreibung

Are you passionate about securing IT systems and services? Do you want to constantly drive automation forward? Do you like to bring in new ideas and techniques? Then you've come to the right place!

Our client, a global full-service provider in the field of digital and physical document management, is currently looking for a Software Firewall Engineer to join their team.

Tasks

- You develop solutions in security infrastructure areas.
- By using the latest security mechanisms, you develop and optimize the existing firewall infrastructure.
- You design and implement automation solutions and define processes and interfaces.
- You enjoy developing concepts and architectures in the IT security environment.
- You advise and support application managers and internal or external project managers on firewall and security issues.
- The cooperation in projects as well as the support of the firewall operation in solving 2nd/3rd level support questions (incl. on-call service) complete your area of responsibility.

Must Haves

- To be successful in this role, you will either have relevant experience, a degree in engineering or have completed training as a computer scientist with security experience in the IT field.
- You are well versed in network and firewall technologies and bring experience in Linux, scripting languages and automation.
- Firewall software / hardware products are not new territory for you.
- You can use your high quality and security awareness on a daily basis.
- You think in terms of technologies future-oriented, are hungry to learn new things and have a healthy amount of assertiveness to successfully complete special orders or sub-projects.
